DINNER WILL BE HELD BY SCIENCE
December 4th Is the Date Decided On

The executive of the Science Undergraduate Society has this year decided to hold the annual dinner before Christmas in the hope of making the affair a greater success. December 4 is the date chosen and every effort to assure that the affair is as successful as it should be is being made. It will be held at the Venetian Gardens, and the excellent orchestra maintained there will be on hand to enliven the proceedings. Invitations have been sent to several prominent men in the city interested in the Science Faculty, and the executive hopes that as many Science men as possible will avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing these gentlemen speak.
Remembering the proverbial scarcity of funds among students generally, the price has been kept as low as is humanly possible, and tickets will be sold for $2.50, a very reasonable figure. These will be put on sale at an early date to be announced later. Any suggestions for making the affair a marked success will be gratefully received by the executive, as it is felt that the Science dinner should be one of the outstanding social functions of the college year. The fact that it has been but poorly attended in the past should act as an incentive to Science men in making sure that this year things will be different.

LOVE ALL GONE THEN.
Mrs. Pennywise—Too bad your fiancé has no money. But I suppose it'll be a case of love in a cottage.
Miss Goldilox—No, I think not. You see, we're going to board at first and we won't move into our cottage until after the honeymoon.

MARITIMERS WILL MEET THIS EVENING
Miss Mairi Matheson to Sing

As previously announced, all Maritime students at McGill will have the opportunity of hearing the Scottish singer, Miss M. Matheson, to-night at 8 o'clock in Strathcona Hall.
This will not be Miss Matheson's first appearance before several Maritimers, as many will remember the concerts she gave to the troops stationed at Witley Camp, England, particularly to the Nova Scotia Highlanders and the 104th N. B. and P. E. I. Battalions.
These were the first Canadian audiences Miss Matheson sang to, and it was they who gave her the first incentive towards inaugurating her Canadian tour.
Besides Miss Matheson, there will be several prominent speakers present, and a very enjoyable evening's entertainment is assured.
All students from the "Provinces by the Atlantic" are therefore asked to be present and make it a "bumper evening." Refreshments will be served.

COPE ARTS NOMINEE TO STUDENTS' COUNCIL

At a class meeting of Arts '24 held yesterday afternoon, F. C. Cope was elected as the Arts nominee for the Students' Council, having defeated Bernard Cohen. L. C. Tombs was also nominated, but withdrew in favor of Cope. Cope's nomination was enthusiastically received as he has taken a prominent part in student affairs, is very popular, and is thought an ideal man for the Council. The treasurer, J. K. McLetchie, was authorized to collect the sum of thirty-five cents from each member for the class fund. L. C. Tombs, associate editor of the 1924 Annual, reported excellent progress on its compilation. President C. T. Teakle urged all Arts juniors to give the Annual Board their fullest cooperation.

FEDERATION DISCUSSED YESTERDAY
Irving P. Rexford Addresses Faculty Representatives
AT UNION

Campaign Will Be Held at the University

Addressing a meeting of representatives of the various faculties in the Union yesterday afternoon, Mr. Irving P. Rexford briefly outlined the work undertaken by the Federation of the 26 charities recently organized in Montreal.
Mr. Rexford pointed out that from yesterday and continuing on to this Friday night, the Federation are running a campaign for $350,000. This sum is to be divided, in accordance with a schedule already completed, among 26 local charities. The activities of each of these 26 charities have been closely examined by a number of experts, and the cause of each has been declared worthy by them.
Hitherto each Society has undertaken a campaign of its own, the Federation idea being a new one in Montreal amongst the Protestant societies. Under the old system, the public was often called upon to give to these charities, but under this new system these 26 charities will not be allowed to solicit individually, they receiving their quota of the general collection as predetermined.
Another great drawback in the old system of collecting was the large expense entailed in doing so. A number of paid collectors were, as a rule, employed to collect the money pledged, they usually receiving about 10 per cent of the amount which they collected. The collecting in this campaign is entirely gratis. One thousand citizens are giving up their whole time this week to aid in the collection of these funds. Also, under the old system, as a means of getting money with which to carry on, the societies gave dances and plays. Fully 50 per cent of the money realized at these affairs had to be paid out as expenses.
The Federation system has proven its worth in many cities. Toronto, London, and Winnipeg, who adopted this Federation system some years ago, have found it to be very successful. From year to year a larger number of charity agencies have been included in the registers of the various federations, the aim being in the various cities to include all charitable societies, except those which are distinctly Roman Catholic or Jewish, as the committees in charge of this federation is entirely English speaking Protestant.
The constituent societies of the Montreal Federation make race and creed no bar when it comes to giving aid. The University Settlement, for instance, serves mostly, the Jewish people, being in the heart of the Jewish section of Montreal.
Mr. Rexford concluded his remarks by saying that in the past, about 200 of Montreal's citizens had born 75 per cent

BASKETBALL WORKOUT FOR SENIOR MEN
Van Wagner Gives Men Many Useful Hints
SMALL TURNOUT
Games Have Been Arranged With American Teams

The fact that no reminder of last night's practice was printed in yesterday's issue of the Daily, coupled with the fact that a number of inter-class games were scheduled for the same hour was no doubt the reason that the basketball practice held last night was so poorly attended. Only a little over 20 men turned out. Although last year's team is practically intact, Norm Livshin being the only member lost to it by graduation, "Art" Manson was the only man on the floor who played last year. Crain and Little watched the practice from the side lines, as did Mendelsohn, who is suffering from a bruised eye. All these men will, however, be out tonight at a second practice to be held at 6 o'clock in the High School gymnasium, University street.
In a short talk before the practice, Coach Van Wagner emphasized the necessity of conscientious practice. It is a common thing, he declared, to see players throwing the ball around in a slipshod manner and in general practising loosely. This is bound to be reflected in their play in a real game, and consequently every man should make it a point to practice just as he would play in a game.
"Van" then divided the squad into five teams, two of them taking the floor for a while, then resting while the next two played. At the conclusion of each game the players were called together by the coach, and their weaknesses pointed out, most noticeable of which were charging and foul checking.
Outstanding among the players last night were Manson, who showed real mid-season form at centre, and Slipritzen, who gave a very neat exhibition at home. The latter is a finished player who has had experience on several city league teams, and should make it

THE DEVELOPMENT OF WATER POWER
E. R. Alexander to Address Economics Club

The second meeting of the Economics Club will be held on Thursday evening, at which E. Ryckman Alexander, a third year Economics student, will read a paper entitled, "The Development of Water Power in Canada." Alexander has spent considerable time in the preparation of his paper on this timely subject, which is awaited with much interest. Water power will be discussed from an economic, not an industrial point of view, emphasis being laid on the vast saving of coal from the saddling of water power. Of late years the development of water power in Canada has made enormous strides, and Thursday's paper is certain to attract a numerous audience.
It is expected that Dr. Stephen Leacock, Honorary President of the Economics Club, will be present, and will take a leading part in the discussion following the paper. The absence of Dr. J. C. Hemmon, Honorary Vice-President, will be greatly regretted. Owing to ill health, he will be in the hospital for about one week, afterwards going home to rest up for several months, resuming his lectures in February. During Dr. Hemmon's absence, Dr. Leacock will take over his lectures.

SMOKER WILL BE HELD BY ONTARIO MEN
Next Monday Evening in the Union
HOCKEY TEAM

Season's Activities Discussed at First Meeting Yesterday

The Ontario Club at its meeting yesterday afternoon decided to open its yearly activities with a smoker on Monday evening for which an excellent programme is being arranged. The questions of holding a dance, a skating party, a card party, other entertainments, and the formation of a hockey team to challenge teams of the other sectional clubs were discussed. The amendment to the constitution reducing the membership fee from two to one dollar was adopted.
The smoker which will inaugurate the season's schedule is expected to be a most entertaining affair and the evening programme will consist of talks, boxing bouts, much music and several novel features which will be announced later. It is the intention of the executive to make this entertainment a monster affair, so that new men at McGill may see the sort of thing that the Ontario Club is capable of doing.
The matter of a dance was gone into and it was found that a dance could be arranged at the Venetian Gardens at a cost of three dollars per couple and would include refreshments. The club would not have the hall to themselves but the management is willing to do their best to make the evening a success for the men. An alternative would be to rent a hall and have it strictly a private dance with perhaps the club's own orchestra. The "where" and "when" of this dance will be decided on Monday evening.
Davis, the vice-president, moved that the club should organize a hockey team and should issue a challenge to all the sectional clubs. This suggestion seemed to find much favour with those present and it is very likely that a team will get busy as soon as the ice appears.
At the present time the Ontario Club has far more men to draw from than any of the other provincial organizations. In the first year alone there are a hundred and fifty men and this club offers them practically the only opportunity of meeting students from their part of the province. The advantages of knowing and making friends with men living near to them cannot be overestimated. It is not only advantageous from a business point of view but it is a great incentive to keep alive the McGill spirit after graduation in the way of reunions and banquets.
At the first smoker last year there were about a hundred and fifteen men present, which was a far greater number than the executive at that time

GOING TO THE TEA DANCE AT R.V.C.?

Tickets for Saturday on Sale at the Union

Eating is an extremely old custom and has been practised by the better classes of society almost without interruption from earliest times. And "society," like the potentate of the parable whose touch transformed every object into gold, has embellished and adorned the all-too-common habit of eating until there has been evolved throughout the ages that most charming and exquisite product of human culture—the Thé Dansant—and particularly the R.V.C. Thé Dansant.
Should anyone be unfamiliar with this type of entertainment it might be said that in order to attend such an ultra-exclusive affair first and foremost one buys two tickets—that is, of course, if after Friday night one finds he has still one dollar in his pocket. If one has had a dance the night before with a particularly appealing piece of femininity, it is quite the custom among some men to ask her to tea the following afternoon—at this point R.V.C. is at your service to gratify every desire—under no circumstances, however, invite your partner of the night before—she might think your intentions serious and Monday morning would probably find you the embarrassed object of a letter to Captain Cuttle.
Many men will come stag. Owing to the absence of Beavers among the men here at McGill (as was learned at the play-off on Saturday) the usual amusement cannot be derived from this game. "Egg" too, cannot be played to advantage—but should the ex-Minister of Defence and Militia desire to come, arrangements will be made that a co-ed be stationed in the lower hall to make his acquaintance in the usual "Egg" manner.

But, seriously speaking, preparations for the coming Thé Dansant promise much for its success. Tables will be along three sides of the large Assembly Hall and efforts are being made that the service may be as prompt and satisfactory as possible. Couches and cushions will do their utmost to make one comfortable and the hall will be decorated in the usual Red and White. "Chub" will smile on all as of old, Adney will jazz and the saxophone will boom. As no entertainment now is complete without the popular "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean," no one will be disappointed—and all this, for the small sum of fifty cents each.

What you have inherited from your fathers you must first earn for yourself before you can call it yours.—Goche.
THAT HARD OLD WORLD.
Is there an opening here for me? Yes, right behind; you use it.
In the parlor they were sitting—Sitting by the firelight glow; Quickly were the minutes flitting, Till at last he rose to go. With his overcoat she pattered, From her eyes escaped a tear—"Must you go so soon?" she muttered, "Won't you stay for breakfast, dear!"

MONTREAL, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1922

MODERATION

It has been long recognized, at least on this continent, that the acquisition of knowledge is by no means the sole aim of a university course. That the book-worm is not a desirable member of the student body, and that students prominent in extra-curriculum activities are men to be emulated, are facts long ago accepted as part of the average collegian's creed. And we at McGill have certainly not been blind to these facts. Time and again in these columns support for all campus activities has been urged, and the development of an enthusiastic college spirit enjoined.

That this should be the current trend of feeling in universities is not in itself to be deplored. But unfortunately there is the danger that this idea stretch too far. In some colleges the academic standing of the institution has been seriously affected by this spirit. The campus athlete is often the popular hero while the brilliant student, though perhaps respected, is rarely envied. At many colleges more pride is felt in the existence of a "college spirit" in its most intense form than in the maintenance of a truly intellectual atmosphere. In short, there is a tendency in general towards over-emphasis of the extra-curriculum phase of college life, to the detriment of the intellectual side. This from no point of view can be desirable.

At McGill, no such situation has presented itself as yet in anything like a serious form. And it is certainly not intended here that manifestation of less interest in college affairs should be proposed to avert this danger. Moderation in this regard is a sufficient solution. College endeavours should by all means be accorded as much support as they receive at McGill, but the academic aim of a college course should never be lost sight of. Activities and studies need not clash; one need not be sacrificed to the other. There is no man who deserves to call himself a student of McGill who cannot find time to be a loyal son of his Alma Mater in the full sense of the word.

It is a very fine thing to put good athletic teams on the field, or to nourish a splendid "college spirit" amongst the undergraduates, but if a university does not send out into the world educated men it cannot lay claim to fulfilment of its mission. McGill seems a long way yet from allowing the pendulum to swing too far in this regard. McGill's academic standing has not been impaired. But it is at least worth bearing in mind that while the book-worm is condemned, the well-read man is not to be discouraged; while the athlete is acclaimed he is to be condemned if he neglects his studies. The glory of McGill will be upheld in the outside world not necessarily by the man who has taken a prominent part in college affairs but by the well-proportioned man—the truly educated man.

CONTEMPORARY OPINION

Under the heading "The Real College Student," the New York Times, after commenting upon the tendency of college men to engage in multifarious social activities and to devote their time to outside interests to the possible neglect of academic pursuits, goes on to express itself as follows:

"Perhaps a reaction long overdue may shortly manifest itself. To be most efficacious it ought to originate among the students themselves, and no one who knows the pervasive but latent idealism of our college boys can doubt that, once the movement started, it would spread rapidly. Why should not something like an Oxford movement sweep the present academic generation? It would certainly not run along theological lines, like its British precursor, but might be a return to standards of intellectual seriousness. It would make the pursuit of knowledge actually come first in the life of the student, and a man's rating in the esteem of his fellows would rest upon the persistency with which he fought toward that goal. It would automatically solve the problem of too many students going to college. It is possible that the academic Samurai might soon be able to dominate the college world, if they would but attempt it."

ALL COLUMBUS' FAULT.

The Paris Temps, one of the leading French newspapers, which has long been skeptical as to the political, diplomatic, and literary ability of the American people, is now seriously beginning to wonder just what good Christopher Columbus did in sailing westward, and whether or not the discovery of America was a good thing for mankind.

The origin of cosmetics which is attributed to the misdirected efforts of Americans will, according to the Temps, be forever a black mark against Columbus. Their use is not only sinful for women, but a nuisance to men because the latter are often deceived as to the contents of the box. America is branded by this publication as a modern Pandora emitting from its portals diseases which have wrought destruction on the rest of the world.

But just as Pandora is supposed to have been of some value to humanity as the progenitor of women, so America is given some credit for her two real accomplishments; the introduction of tobacco and the invention of a new variety of cocktail. The Temps discounts the ancient stories that Aristotle smoked a corn cob while formulating his rules for the syllogism, and that Aphrodite conjured up men's deepest passions by lulling their senses with the sweet aroma of pipe leaves.

The Temps may be right. Enmeshed and weighed down to the bottom by our infirmities, perhaps not even such achievements as the discovery of tobacco and the making of new recipes for cocktails, the latter of which the law now puts us in jail for drinking, can give us an excuse for our existence. If Columbus had only sailed the other way, the Indians, with their higher civilization, in addition to what we have accomplished, might have found some new drug, or brand of alcohol more satisfying even than the recipe we have provided. Anyway, the Indians are a hardy people and would not have been guilty of inventing face powder, or bothering the world by new diseases such as whooping cough.—Michigan Daily.

A MODEST ATTITUDE.

"You are always successful in being re-elected."

"I don't take as much credit for that fact as I used to," replied Senator Sorghum. "I come from a prosperous community. Anybody competent to fill the position would not regard my salary as an inducement to become a competitor."—Minnesota Daily.

The National Trade-mark

OLD silversmiths, in order to help people tell pure silver from cheaper imitations, marked the real thing "sterling."

In a like manner, manufacturers, who stand back of their wares, identify them with trade-marks that are your guarantee of quality. By advertising these trade-marks, they focus on their products the searchlight of attention.

Only good goods, fairly priced, can flourish in this light of publicity. For no merchandise and no business can thrive under the weight of public condemnation.

That is why a manufacturer, or a merchant, places the whole reputation of his business at stake every time he advertises. His goods must be as advertised.

So, in looking through this paper remember this: the man who spends his money to invite your consideration of his wares, backs up his belief in his goods and leaves the final decision to you.

It pays you to read the advertisements. It pays you to buy advertised products.

Advertising is your protection

BASKETBALL CONTESTS AT MOLSON HALL

Three Are Scheduled But Only One Takes Place

GAMES DEFAULTED

Arts Seniors Are Defeated by
Med. '24 Quintet

Of three games scheduled in the inter-class basketball league for last night, only one took place. Through an unfortunate omission, no mention was made in yesterday's Daily of these games. It is peculiar, however, that four out of six of the teams did receive notice and put their men on the floor.

The two teams who did not get their games spent a profitable hour practising Commerce '25 has an excellent aggregation, and is in a position to make a strong bid for the championship. Cummings and Davis showed up especially well for the commercials.

Med. '27 Lost to Sci. '24 by Default

As late as fifteen minutes after the game was scheduled to commence, there was not a sign of a Med. '27 man on the floor. The Science men were sorely disappointed at not getting the game they expected, and only with great reluctance did the Plumbers' captain accept the victory by the default route. Not wishing to waste the evening, the men engaged in a snappy practice and showed that they would have put up a stiff fight against the embryo doctors, had they had the sportsmanship to turn up and play the game.

Med. '24 vs. Arts '23

Meds. '24 defeated Arts '23 in a fast game of basketball by the score of 32-7 at Molson Hall last night.

The Med. team proved their unquestioned superiority in all points of the game. They took the lead from the start and ran up a score of ten points before Arts got started. The Meds. had a pretty combination, and used it to advantage. They also covered their men well.

In the second half Arts fought hard, but they were not able to overcome the lead against them.

It would not be possible to pick out a man on either team and say that he starred. Both teams were evenly balanced, hard fighting aggregations and the game did not slacken up to the last minute.

Arts '23 won the inter-class championship last year and in their opening games it looked as if history might repeat itself, but the Meds. are certainly a big obstacle between any team and the much coveted title.

AT THE IMPERIAL

The Imperial this week presents an excellently balanced bill, all six vaudeville acts being of considerable merit. Following the usual topics of the day and an Aesop's fable, comes the feature, "The Yosemite Trail," with Dustin Farnum and Irene Rich in the leading roles. The scenery, which is very picturesque, coupled with good acting and thrilling situations, makes an altogether pleasing picture.

On the other part of the programme, Eddington and Grant, as "The Boys from Bounce Inn" give a novel and pleasing exhibition of twists and turns turns with the aid of some very powerful springs. They have an appearance of gracefulness and finish, being able to play musical instruments while performing. The McKay Sisters then follow with a good musical act, beginning with songs and dances, and finishing up with some snappy tunes on the bagpipes. George Rolland and Company keep the crowd laughing with a short comedy entitled "Bringing Home the Christmas Tree." A society man hires a "bloke" to carry home his presents, who, by his simplicity and broad accent creates a great deal of amusement. The fourth item by Edd and May Ernie, "Three Feet of Comedy," is a little unusual, the point being that the man in the case has but one leg. He is very agile, however, and both he and his fair partner put forward their best and win the admiration of the audience. Warzer and Palmer then score a hit with their humorous dialogue. The society lady who likes slumming completely overwhelms the coal wagon driver with her six and seven syllabled words. The climax is reached when the labourer discovers a box of cigarettes and a flask in her handbag. The last act, a musical one, is "Asses" and has rich settings and costumes. The four Rubini sisters all combine with their various instruments in producing a very pleasing result, being well received and encored. Taken all round, the audience seemed to be well satisfied with every act.

DOUBLE-HEADER IN POLO THIS EVENING

First and Second Teams to Meet M.A.A.A.

A double header in water polo will be staged this evening at 8:15 at the Y.M.C.A. tank when the McGill Seniors and Intermediates clash with the M.A.A.A. Seniors and Intermediates.

The M.A.A.A. Senior team is a fast aggregation, having strengthened their team for tonight's game by the addition of several last year's champions. They intend to make a strong bid for a win tomorrow night but when they try to pull a win out of the hands of the McGill Seniors they will find that they are up against a tough aggregation. In the game between these two squads McGill won by the score of 5-2 and some of the ablest critics of this sport favor the McGill men for tonight's game. The game, however, will be a struggle from start to finish as both teams are eager for the title. The McGill Seniors are at present leading the league and if a win is scored by them tonight the championship seems assured; if on the other hand they should lose the chances for the title are exceedingly remote. The Seniors present a formidable line-up and consists of men who have carried the college colours to victory in the last two games.

The Intermediates meet their old rivals, the M.A.A.A. Intermediates, in the second game and a mighty tussle is expected. The M.A.A.A. team has not lost a game as yet and while the McGill team had hard luck at the beginning of the year the expectations are that they will turn the tables on the M.A.A.A. swimmers and spoil their record. The tank will be aired and cooled before the last game so that the teams will have every opportunity for showing the crowd some fast and exciting polo.

Tickets will be on sale at the Union Tuck Shop and the Central Y.M.C.A. Admission: reserved seats, 75c; general admission, 50c. A large attendance is needed to cheer the teams on to victory. The line-up:

Seniors—Goal, Graham Browne; defense, Anson, Laidley; centre, Ross; forwards, Vernot, Munro.
Intermediates—Goal, Jardine; defense, Phipps, Forsyth; centre, Moore; forwards, Vickerson, Murphy; subs, Wade, Bethel.

FISTS, FALLS & FOILS

The boxing and Wrestling practices which have occupied the attention of McGill fistic fans for the last few weeks, are now to justify their existence.

Both the boxers and wrestlers will make their debut of the season during this week.

The mat men will show their prowess to-night at the National A. A., when they meet some of the choice huskies from that institution.

Faculty eliminations for boxers are scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

The sluggers are starting rather early in the season to find out who's who.

It is a case of "The survival-of the fittest." That is to say, the battlers who survive on Saturday, are eligible for the inter-faculty arguments.

Coach Smith has the greatest aggregation of wrestlers seen at McGill for many years.

The veteran coach is fairly bubbling over with confidence and enthusiasm. His pet huskies are determined to show the Nationals to-night a couple of tricks which the mentor has taught them.

The line-up for to-night's wrestling is as follows:—

110 lbs.—Boullet, National, vs. Langlois, independent.
125 lbs.—R. Doucet, National, vs. H. E. Reid, McGill.
135 lbs.—R. Angrignon, National, vs. E. O. Mader, McGill.
135 lbs.—H. Archambault, National, vs. G. Howes, McGill.
145 lbs.—E. Georges, National, vs. E. A. McNaughton, McGill.
Heavyweight—J. Rumpel, McGill, vs. E. O. Freedman, McGill.

The followers of the French art have been very active lately. The fencers have had regular practices in the past, and boast of a squad of men that would turn many a true Parisian to shame.

Fencing practices are held on Monday and Thursday, at 5 o'clock, at the Diocesan College.

Coach Smith announces that wrestling practices will be held in future on Monday and Thursday, at 5.15 o'clock, in the Union Ball Room.

All entries for the faculty boxing must be in early this week. To avoid disappointment, the embryonic Dempseys should register at this afternoon's workout.

Boxing practice at Molson's Hall to-day at 5.15 p.m.

HARVARD IS DEFEATED BY BRUNONIAN

Providence Team Springs
Big Surprise

SCORE 3-0

Harvard Loses Touchdown
by Player Holding

Harvard threw away all chances of winning over Brown on Saturday by holding just as a touchdown was being scored, for the Brunonians rallied gamely and shot a fine field goal at the opening of the fourth period for the only score of the game, and a well-earned victory of 3-0.

The poor showing of Harvard was perhaps the outstanding and probably, from a Crimson standpoint, the most depressing feature of the game. The penalty which followed the holding episode seemed to take the punch from Harvard, and from that time the Crimson played a weak defensive game, and in the last two periods was never beyond its own 35-yard line on the offense. The Brown forwards smothered nearly every Harvard play and knocked down all but three of the forward passes, although it must be said that some of the Harvard tosses were of the schoolboy type, being hurled indiscriminately over the field.

On the other hand, Brown could get no nearer than Harvard's 9-yard line, although it had three shots at the Harvard goal post, one of them scoring, another going wide and a third hitting an upright and carroming back into the field.

The first period was a kicking contest, with Hammond outpunching Myers. Each side felt out the other on rushing, but kept its best plays until later. Harvard finally tried out an aerial, but Churchill, who caught the toss, was thrown outside for no gain. Hammond drew a long punt, which bounded out of bounds on Brown's 3-yard line, and on the punt which followed Cha-chi captured the ball on Brown's 31-yard line. It certainly looked like a fine chance for a march, but on the second play Churchill dropped the ball.

Harvard's chance came in the second period, for Myers, in the Brown backfield, muffed a punt on his 45-yard line, and Hubbard recovered it on Brown's 34-yard line. Hammond plunged through the Brown team for 11 yards and a first down. Churchill gathered in 5 more yards, and Coburn added enough to make it a first down on Brown's 15-yard line.

It was Harvard's ball on Brown's 4-yard line. Hammond made a yard. Churchill 2 yards, and then Coburn drove across the final chalk mark for what the spectators thought was a touchdown.

But there was consternation when Referee Evans sent Harvard back to Brown's 16-yard line because one of the Crimson players was holding. The decision seemed to take the life out of the entire Harvard team.

After a short rush Hammond, one of the crack field goal kickers of the team, dropped back to Brown's 28-yard line, but the kick was a miserable one, the ball not even reaching the goal line. A minute or two later Harvard started another offense, and while 15 yards was made in six rushes, time stopped further progress.

Brown started right in at the opening of the third period to score, either by rushing or kicking. Myers caught the Harvard kick-off, and was not stopped until he had reached his own 35-yard line. On the second down, Howette made 11 yards, and Adams gathered in another first down with the ball on Harvard's 45-yard line. The Crimson rallied a bit, and Myers punted over the goal line. Harvard could gain but 4 yards in the first rush, and again Myers gathered in a punt and ran to Harvard's 43-yard line before he was downed. A short penalty was followed by a clever forward pass, Myers to Sweet, and the ball was on Harvard's 31-yard line. Three more rushes carried it to the 25-yard line, and there Sweet tried a field goal. The ball hit the upright and bounced off into the field.

Myers made a fair catch in midfield, and once more the Brown machine was thrown into the high. After four rushes had been tried with only slight gains, Myers dropped back as if for a punt. The Harvard forwards rushed through to block the kick, but Myers stepped on one side and shot the ball to Adams far out on the wings, who made 15 yards before he was stopped. A double and a triple pass gained another first down, on Harvard's 16 yard line, but four rushes only netted 7 yards. Here time was called for the period.

Adams opened the fourth period by dropping an easy field goal from Harvard's 18-yard line for the only score of the game.

PENN. BEATS PENN. STATE BY ONE POINT

Forward Pass Wins for the Philadelphians

SCORE 7-6

48,000 See Red and Blue
Gain Hard-Earned Victory

With the same kind of a forward pass, McGraw to Captain Miller, on which Penn beat the Navy, the Red and Blue team on Saturday defeated Penn State on Franklin Field, 7 to 6. A baffling southpaw heave when State expected Penn to hit the line, coming in the middle of the third period, found the Lebanon youth alert and he picked it out of the air and ran 12 yards to the goal line.

Hamer, whose failure to kick a place-kick goal deprived Penn of a tie score against Pitt a week ago, booted the ball squarely between the uprights, and it was good that he did, for a little later in the same period State scored a touchdown of its own on a beautifully worked forward pass, Palm to Harry Wilson. But Palm missed his try at goal and brought woe to the Penn State thousands in the north stand and joy to Penn's big cheering section on the other side of the field.

More than 48,000 persons saw Penn put over its first victory against State since 1916. No games were played in 1917 and 1918, but the Bezedek coached teams were victorious in 1919, 10-0, and two years ago, 28-7.

It is little wonder that the Penn rooters were joyful at the finish of one of the fiercest struggles ever seen between these two fighting rivals. Captain Miller made a quick dash for Captain Bentler of the beaten Lions and shook his hand and before Penn could get out of the big jam he was surrounded by State players and a general handshaking followed.

Penn's snake dance, which has not been in evidence since the Navy victory, was resuscitated, the Red and Blue students pouring out on the field and marching back of their military band, whooped things up while State sat dumbfounded in the north stand. It was the second defeat of the year for the Nittany Lions, who hung up a three-year record of consecutive victories and ties, until the Middies stepped in and broke the streak at Washington several weeks ago.

Twice during the game Hamer tried placement goals, and they missed by the narrowest margin. The first try came in the opening period from the 27-yard line, and the second from the 41-yard mark, early in the final period. The latter kick was a beautiful effort, and missed the uprights by a foot.

Late in the final period Bedenk, the 183-pound right guard of Penn State, was badly injured in a scrimmage when he dove under a big mass of players in trying to stop Craig, who had been substituted for Langdon. Bedenk suffered a slight concussion of the brain, and after being examined in the dressing room, was taken to the university hospital, where he was resting easily.

Penn, aside from scoring its one touchdown, was in a position to tally at least two other times, the first being soon after the start of the game, when the Red and Blue held State for downs and marched from its own 44-yard line to the 17-yard mark before State braced enough to halt the procession. Hamer tried his first placement goal, but it went a little shy of the mark. State never threatened the goal line in the first period, although Wilson made some spectacular runs off tackle.

In the second period Coach Heisman sent in George Sullivan to relieve McGraw. The Penn stands started to yell for "Sully" to cut loose with one of his sensational runs, but State kept him so well covered he was unable to shake off the pack as in the Alabama game.

The line-up:

SYRACUSE BEATS COLGATE 14 TO 7

70-Yard Run Back of Punt
by Zimmerman Features

Outplayed throughout and unable to stop a line attack which netted many first downs in consecutive strings, Syracuse managed to wrest a 14-7 victory from Colgate at Syracuse in a contest that kept 25,000 spectators on edge throughout the game.

A faulty pass back for a kick from Colgate's centre to fullback, which the latter fumbled on his own goal line, gave Syracuse its first score about the middle of the opening period. A 70-yard run by Zimmerman returning a long punt from Tryon brought the second. On this play Zimmerman ran along the chalk lines at the side and the Colgate players, thinking he was out of bounds, made little effort to stop him.

Three times Colgate was within scoring distance after sifting at will through the Orange line and three times the field general called for a forward pass which in each case was intercepted. Once Colgate reached their opponents' 12-yard line, once the eighteen and again the nineteen, when the attempted forward pass spoiled their chances for a win. The football played by the Hamilton boys was far superior to that displayed by the Orange and they should have won on merit.

Colgate's score came at the close of the final quarter, when a series of line plunges by the fast hard-hitting backs took the ball down to the Syracuse 35-yard line. Then an end run netted 15 yards and a line buck nine more. Tryon then filled in the rest of the distance through the line and Welch kicked the point after touchdown.

Colgate more than doubled the first downs taken by Syracuse and many of them were run off in quick succession. They swept down the field three times by tearing wide holes in the Orange line, which seemed powerless before the attack, and then lost by a change of tactics. Once in the last few minutes Colgate had a chance to score when Zimmerman fumbled Leonard's kick off on his own 4-yard line, but Anderson just managed to recover the ball for Syracuse and the game ended with the ball in Syracuse's possession on its own 12-yard line.

Had Colgate continued its line attack instead of using forward passes at critical moments, the result probably would have been different.

The line-up:

Syracuse, 14 Colgate, 7
Left End Jappe Childs
Left Tackle Waldorf Benthal
Left Guard Van Blaricum Travnor
Centre Culver Rathbone
Right Guard Heers Welch
Right Tackle Baysinger Leonard
Right End McRae Tracy
Quarterback Frugonne Townsend

Right Halfback Anderson Tryon
Fullback Zimmerman Mason
Score by periods:

Syracuse 7 0 7 0—14
Colgate 0 0 7 0—7
Touchdowns—Syracuse: Anderson; Zimmerman. Colgate: Tryon.

MANUFACTURE OF CALCIUM CARBIDE

R. A. Witherspoon Before Soc. of Chemical Industry

The second meeting of the Montreal section of the Society of Chemical Industry was held at the Queen's Hotel last evening, Dr. A. R. M. MacLean, the chairman, presiding. A very interesting and instructive paper was presented by Mr. R. A. Witherspoon of the Canada Carbide Co., entitled "The Manufacture of Calcium Carbide." The early stages of the industry were dealt with, and it is a point of interest that the carbide industry was the second electro-chemical industry to be developed, aluminium being the first. The first carbide was made by Noison, using a block of chalk, hotted out in the centre as a furnace and having electrodes at the sides. This furnace could not be used on a commercial scale for obvious reasons and the lecturer dealt with the development of the modern furnace in a very interesting way, showing what an important factor the quantity of electricity, the voltage, amperage and the time it flows, can be. Carbide was made some time ago in an electric furnace but it was realized that unless it could be obtained in the molten condition and tapped it would not be a great success on the large scale—one reason for this was the formation of scale around the sides of the crucible and another was the fact that operations had to be stopped and the crucible emptied from time to time. If the carbide could be obtained molten, it could be tapped from the bottom and no pause would be necessary. About ten years ago experiments were carried out at Shawinigan on these lines. At first 75 volts were used but with no success. It was later discovered that with this high voltage the hot charge became a conductor and did not get hot enough to melt. The temperature required to melt carbide, by the way, is 2,200 degrees Centigrade, considerably higher than that required in the manufacture of steel. An experiment was then tried with two furnaces in series using the same voltage. In this way each furnace was given about 40 volts and the experiment was a success. Carbide was obtained in the molten condition and was tapped off at the bottom.

Another improvement which has come about in the last twenty years is the preparation of raw material. Formerly it was believed that the lime and coke had to be intimately mixed and finely pulverized before being admitted to the furnace. This involved much expense and considerable loss of material. Now the lime and coke are broken into pieces from 1 to 2 inches in diameter and these are roughly mixed by flowing through a spout. In this way only half the raw material formerly used is found necessary.

The main use of carbide is of course for acetylene lights. In the States there are 300,000 individual lighting plants. In Canada there are not so many, owing to climatic conditions. Another use is in light-houses and a most important instrument is the Oxy-Acetylene torch. Among the chemical products formed from acetylene are acetic acid, the fertilizers, cyanamide and ammonium sulfate and also the important substance acetylene black. This is used as a tinting medium for paints and possesses peculiar properties as a decolorizer for sugar and also for water, although it has not up till now been used extensively for either of these purposes.

Dr. Ruttan conveyed a message of greeting from the president of the Society of London to the members of the Canadian sections. He also conveyed his appreciation of the Society's gift of $50 to be applied as a bursary for students entering their senior year in Chemical Engineering. Incidentally this prize is being awarded to the student presenting the best essay embodying his practical experience during the summer.

Eighty members and guests were present. Among the visiting members were F. J. Hambly and V. Kitto, of Ottawa, and Dr. Goodwin, of Kingston.

SMOKER WILL BE HELD BY ONTARIO MEN

had planned for, but this session, with an increase in the number of Ontario men at McGill and the superiority of the programme an even larger crowd is expected. The refreshments will be provided by the Union Cafeteria and will measure up to their usual high standard, while the smokers will be ample to satisfy even the best friends of Lady Nicotine.

The faculty representatives were instructed to appoint men in each college year to canvass the students in their respective classes. In this way it is expected that every Ontario man in the university will be induced to sign up and pay their one dollar fee. The executive was reminded that the picture of the Ontario Club will be taken this afternoon at 5 o'clock at Notman's Studio. Besides the executive the faculty representatives will also be included in this group.

WOMEN STUDENTS OF MCGILL MEET

Representatives Draw Up Tentative Constitution

The second meeting of the women representatives from the different faculties and departments of McGill was held at R.V.C. last night. The business of the meeting was chiefly discussion, many points being brought up, the chief of which were what the membership of such a society should be, and of what the executive should consist. The representatives from the departments gave their views on these and other points, and spoke of the general feeling among the women students in favour of a society to which every woman at McGill would belong.

The committee then drew up a tentative constitution, dealing with membership fees and executive, etc. The clauses of this tentative constitution are, however, merely suggestions, and the purpose in drawing it up is chiefly to give the women students a few points to consider, so that when the time comes they will have some ideas and suggestions to give of their own. Copies of this will be placed in the different faculties and departments so that every woman student may have an opportunity of reading it.

of the burden of these charities, and asked that this condition be remedied by each person doing his bit towards making the Federation campaign a success.

E. C. Amaron, who was chairman of the meeting, explained that he was placed in a rather embarrassing position, as the Students' Council, while promising him their moral support in the matter, could not see their way to aid him officially. Notwithstanding this, Amaron was sure that the campaign would be a marked success as far as McGill was concerned. Those present were: Misses Crawford, Feed, Massey-Bailey and Black, of the R.V.C., and Messrs. Amaron, MacNaughton, McLean, MacLaurier and MacPhail, representing the various faculties of McGill.

Dr. J. Bonnell Porter is in charge of the McGill campaign in aid of the Federation. The sub-captains under him are Dr. Harkness for Arts; Prof. Thomson, Commerce; R. A. Mackay, Law; Dr. Barbour, Medicine; Dean Thornton, Dentistry; Dean Perrin, Music; Dr. F. C. Harrison, Agriculture; Miss Hurlbatt, R.V.C.; Prof. H. M. Mackay, Science; Dr. A. Eve, Physics; Prof. N. Evans, Chemistry; Dr. G. R. Lamer, Library; H. Burrill, employees.

The sub-captains are asked to report to-day, for the first time, to Dr. Porter—the latter reporting to W. K. Trouver, chairman of the employees committee on Friday.

There is a great increase of interest in the campaign of the Federation. This is shown by the tremendous demand for the campaign buttons bearing the inscription, "I care." An order had been given for the making of 15,000 buttons, but now more than 30,000 buttons are required. Employees of office staff and factories are showing great enthusiasm. The Colin McArthur Co. report a 100 per cent office staff contribution—the office boy giving $5. The Montreal schools have been addressed by some of the campaign speakers, and by the member of their school teaching staff. The school children were impressed in these addresses with their communal responsibility. 32 working boys in the Boys' Home on Mountain St. subscribed $125. This should indeed be an example to the rest of the community.

TIME AND SPACE WILL BE DISCUSSED

Dr. Harlow Sharpley Is the Speaker

The Astronomical Society of Montreal is to be congratulated upon their having secured as lecturer to-night, Dr. Harlow Sharpley, Director of the Harvard College Observatory. The subject of the lecture will be "Astronomical Investigations of Time and Space." Dr. Sharpley, who has made a special study of star clusters, occupies an eminent place among American Astronomers, and has just recently completed a series of lectures at the Lowell Institute of Boston, on the content and structure of the Sideral Universe.

The lecture is not limited to members of the Society, but all student members of the staff, in fact, anyone interested in scientific achievement is cordially invited to be present. Laymen will not have any difficulty in following Dr. Sharpley, for the lecture will be an illustrated one, and in addition will be delivered in simple language, which everyone can understand.

The lecture will be given in the Macdonald Physics Building, and will commence at 8 o'clock.

PRINCETON WINNERS IN CROSS COUNTRY

Princeton won the first annual triangular cross-country race with Harvard and Yale over the six-mile Belmont course recently, with 30 points. Harvard surprised its followers by taking second place with 45 points, while Yale came in last with 62. Conditions were very good for cross-country running. In the dual freshman race between Harvard and Yale, the Crimson sprang a big surprise by winning with 18 points, Yale following with 37. Harvard followers are now predicting that their freshman team will come pretty close to winning the intercollegiate freshman championship later this month.

Mead Treadwell, of Yale, was the individual winner in the varsity race, covering the course in 33m. 18s. Ridenour Raymond '24 of Princeton, was a close second in 33m. 25s., and R. A. Lutz '23 of Harvard was a close third in 33m. 36s. M. K. Douglas '24, the Yale veteran star, finished seventh, while Capt. E. C. VanderPyl '23 of Yale, had to drop out.

Raymond, of Princeton, held the lead during the first mile with Lutz of Harvard running second. They held the same positions on the second mile. At the third mile Treadwell moved up into first place with Raymond staying second and Lutz in third position. The order remained the same over the fourth mile, but on the fifth mile Lutz took the lead with Raymond second and Treadwell third. Nearing the end of this mile, Treadwell moved back into first place, with Raymond following him closely, and Lutz dropping back to third place. The order of the first 10 finishers and their times follow:

Runner and college—	M. S.
Mead Treadwell, Yale ..	33 18
R. Raymond '24, Princeton ..	33 25
R. A. Lutz '23, Harvard ..	33 36
J. W. Gordon '24, Princeton ..	33 57
Capt. S. C. Conger '24, Princeton ..	34 2
J. W. Bourke '23, Harvard ..	34 24
M. K. Douglas '24, Yale ..	34 33
W. L. Chapin Jr. '25, Harvard ..	34 44
H. C. Willett '24, Princeton ..	34 49
L. B. Leeming '24, Princeton ..	34 51

The Harvard freshman victory was a complete surprise to both the Harvard and Yale men, and shows Harvard has one of the best freshmen cross-country teams that either college has ever developed. J. N. Watters of Harvard, was the first to finish, covering the three miles in 15m. 33s. The only runner able to press him at all was W. L. Tibbetts, a teammate, who was second in 15m. 35s. Capt. G. T. Scoville, of Yale, the favorite to win the individual honors, was third in 15m. 52s. The first 10 men finished as follows:

Runner and college—	M. S.
J. N. Watters, Harvard ..	15 33
W. L. Tibbetts, Harvard ..	15 35
G. T. Scoville, Yale ..	15 52

LACKING IN CONSIDERATION.

As long as the grass in a Chicago public park is healthy and green the citizens seem to look upon it as some sort of garden to keep off of it, as the signs command them. When it begins to die out, however, their respect for it instantly vanishes.

A man in a hurry started one day to cut across a yellow patch in the upper park, but was stopped by a policeman. "What difference does it make?" demanded the citizen. "The grass is half dead already."

"Sure," said the indignant officer, "if ye had a sick friend would ye be walkin' on his stomach?"—Harper's Magazine.

interesting for candidates for the forward positions. With regard to the schedule, it was announced that city league games will commence December 4 and that a number of games have been arranged with American teams, the first of which will be held on December 16 at Burlington with the University of Vermont. For the annual Christmas trip, dates have been arranged with the St. Francis College and Crescent Athletic Associations in Brooklyn, and with the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia.

MICHIGAN CO-EDS

They can roll 'em down, bob their hair, head their eyelashes and rouge to the full limit of the drug store, as far as Miss Jean Hamilton, newly appointed dean of women at the University of Michigan, is concerned. Not only does Miss Hamilton think this practice irrelevant, but relegates all precaution against it to that era set aside for puff sleeves and the military scottische, declaring that the ancient and outworn traditions of our fathers has proved itself incorrect, and that the new theory will reign for at least one generation. Miss Hamilton, who is a graduate of Vassar, said:

"After all it is not a moral issue, this powdering and painting and bobbing of hair. I do not see why such a fuss is made over it. Older people, I fear, who are interested in young people, make the mistake of criticizing the non-essentials instead of the essentials. "The modern college girl is filled with the spirit of the age. And we realize that women, as well as men, have the inherent right to live the life of their own choice.

"Higher education had led girls to question life and parental authority after a certain point and, as a result, parental authority, as such, has lost much meaning to the average full-grown girl of this age.

"Proof of that fact can be found in all of the large cities. There, college girls in large numbers are living independent lives in the inconvenience of small apartments rather than submit to what they consider the tyranny of parents in commodious homes. These girls are carrying on a great experiment that is testing the virtue of the new theory of living.

"If the old plan of blind obedience is correct we will return to it in the natural course of events, but the new theory is demonstrated by the twentieth century girl, and will undoubtedly hold for at

THE BIG EXPENSE.

"What a very stunning coat of arms. I'm sure you ought to be proud of it." "We are. But George says it will cost a lot to put it on the door of the limousine." "Why? Because it's so intricate?" "No, because we have to get the limousine first."

AN AWFUL MISTAKE.

Her Father—Harold seems to have an exemplary character. I don't see why you say your marriage to him was a hideous mistake. Mrs. Junebride—It's just that. I married him to reform him, and now I find that he never needed reforming.

Frosh—Were you ever pinched for going too fast? Soph—No, but I've been slapped.
